

Danny's profile

As an 18 year old with no idea what to do now that school has finished, I started in a junior role at a major insurance company consisting of filing and transferring documents from one place to another.

My career started here and I found myself involved in different aspects of the industry including claims, underwriting, sales & distribution, strategic planning and senior management roles both at a state and national level. Now, after 27 years of various positions within the industry I am currently the Group General Manager of an insurance broking company with over 70 staff across 7 branches.

My career has taken me (and continues to do so) to different parts of Australia and overseas that I would never have been able to enjoy otherwise. Who would've thought my job would allow me to go see Australia vs British Lions in corporate seating.

